Sewing & Quilting Project judging is Wednesday, July 13, 2022 at the Canfield Fairgrounds in the Event Center from 10am - 1pm

What is project judging?

- An opportunity for all youth taking non-livestock projects to demonstrate their knowledge they gained by completing their project and to show off the completed project.
- Judging is about the youth showing the knowledge gained through completing the project.
- Youth will be interviewed by a judge who is a community member who has knowledge of the project. They will ask questions that come from completing the project book and they will look over the completed project, the project book, and/or display board.
- Youth are given the opportunity to experience a one-on-one interview and to gain some great interviewing skills.
- Youth should dress as you would to complete an interview.
- Cloverbuds are also invited to come and show what they have learned this year through their Cloverbud program. They can bring an activity or craft project with them to show to the judge. They can also complete an interview with another Cloverbud friend or group of Cloverbuds if that would make them feel more comfortable.
 - Cloverbuds who complete the judging process will be given a participation ribbon.

What do youth need to complete in the project book??

- Look inside the beginning pages of your project book. Around page 3, 4, or 5 (the exact page is different in each book), look for "Project Guidelines". The project completion steps will be listed in the "Project Guidelines".

What do the youth bring to judging??

- This is on an insert which is put into every non-livestock project book at the Extension Office. It looks like the picture to the right.
- The insert will list the project, age divisions, type of evaluation, and materials to bring to judging. Please follow the list of items to bring to judging for the project.
- The insert are all available on our website at <https://mahoning.osu.edu/4-H/judgings-and-contests>
- If you are missing or need a copy of an insert, please contact the Extension Office 330-533-5538.

The insert is a table with columns: Project, Age Divisions, Type of Evaluation, Materials to Bring to Judging, and Special Notes. It provides a structured format for listing project details and requirements.
